GREEN DOTS
What's Your Green Dot?

SOCIAL MEDIA
You can use social media (@ISUGreenDot) to encourage students, faculty, staff and community members to learn about Green Dot. Add blurbs to your blog post, links in your bios, re-post and re-share videos and programs, or highlight efforts in your department.

PEOPLE
You can request training for your organization or department. Each training is 50 minutes long and encourages positive culture change. There are tool kits available to integrate into the classroom and workspace.

CULTURE CHANGE
Green Dot communicates an intolerance to violence and everyone playing a role in creating change. Utilizing email signatures, creating links from your homepage, and creating access to resources are a few ways you can help set these two norms.

EVERYDAY GREENDOTS
- Make available Green Dot materials such as window clings, cards and reminders to add us on social media.
- Offer, or promote, safe rides home during events. Create a specialized way for someone to discreetly ask for help.
- Check-in on a friend(s) even if they seem happy and 'okay'.
- Include 'Green Dot' language in standard communication.
- Train staff on how to recognize common issues that happen in your community, class or business.
- Train staff on procedure on how to address potential incidents that are diverse in nature (ex. de-escalation tactics, active shooter, bias training, etc.)
